Irti, Studio Legale

Studio Legale Irti is a leading Italian law firm, specialized in civil, commercial and administrative law, with a broad experience in the telecommunications, real estate, banking, corporate governance, and insurance branches.

It was established about one century ago, and it's currently headed by Natalino Irti, Professor of Civil Law at Rome University 'La Sapienza' and member of the 'Accademia dei Lincei' (among other national institutions), considered to be one of the greatest attorneys and interpreters of the law ever operating in Italy, and now supported by his son Nicola and his nephew Alfredo.

Studio Legale Irti has its challenging edges both in the litigation and in the transaction – arbitration sectors (Professor Natalino Irti is also a former chairman of the Italian Association for Arbitration). Particularly valued is its capacity to assess, in a timely manner, if a case is worth being litigated or whether an amicable solution is advised in the overall interest of the client.

The firm has a great experience (and a very high winning rate) in any kind of litigation, and it's appreciated for the excellence of its professional performances, also due to its consolidated teamwork and its constant professional updating. Thanks to its modest size, Studio Legale Irti, which counts on a limited number of selected attorneys (even if assisted by a large network of lawyers spread all over Italy) grants to its clients the same scrupulous care a tailor would employ in his workshop.

The firm has an important tradition in the arbitration sector, as some of the most valuable and delicate controversies of the recent decades were entrusted to Studio Legale Irti, chosen as defence counsel or arbitrator by many business companies. Among these arbitrations, the cases San Paolo/Eni, Montedison/Eni, Mondadori/CIR, H3G/Ericsson, Telecom/Fastweb, Cepav 2/TAV, and many others.
